

From left to right: Immerse artists Matthew Weatherstone, Rachel Carroll, Cade Turner and Jarrah Johnson.

In just 12 days, Immerse recorded more than 1,160 visitors and raised over $1,800 for the National Parks Association of NSW in their fight to save and preserve the River Red Gums in NSW, which are home to at least 69 plants and animals threatened with extinction.

"As artists creating within nature, we are also united by the desire to use our art to raise awareness of the fragility of our environment."

Thank you very much to everyone who was able to attend Immerse and show your support. We hope you enjoyed the experience of immersion as much as we enjoyed bring it to life.

If you would like to keep informed of upcoming news and events, please email Cade Turner at info@cadeturner.com.au.

Proudly supported by

Greens MP, Ian Cohen declares Immerse open!

Local fans stop by for a Patina wine and visual stimulation.

Matt discusses his work with Kevin Evans before opening speeches.

NPA Representative, Kevin Evans talks on the uniqueness and fragility of the Australia's River Red Gum Forests.

Rachel engaging the audience in the idea behind Immerse.

Cade with Chris Cort from Better Homes & Gardens.

Rachel with Sydney poet, Emily McIntyre.

Edinburgh-based artist, Kelly Stuart, impressed with Rachel's latest work.

Matt catches his breath after a busy day!